

We need significant infusion of funds to support online testing. The application process should be less intensive, and more user friendly to educators.